With the return to work post lockdowns, the need will be for Sustainable & sensitized development, which is termed as development that meets the needs of the present but does not compromise the abilities of future generations to meet their needs.

NEXT Steps sufficiency

The HRD experts and organizational models will need to relate to how 202x economic downturns will affect Graduate Education.

Today, most students are known to pursue higher education like their offshore Masters or other post graduations due to the following reasons:

1. Dreams of working and earning to become rich or live comfortably in foreign countries
2. Dreams of working for organizations and businesses known to have created a visionary role
3. Dreams of acquiring more education to make up for any lacunae felt or experienced till date
4. Acting on inability to acquire a job of choice or a job of past expectation, by pursuing post graduation
5. Earning money to pay back for financial undertakings personally or at the home front

All these are real-world interests, but it is for the HRD experts and organizational models to raise the sensitization for a problem-area.

The problem-area is that most countries will review their policies to offer work-permits or work-visas to foreign students or foreign employees. This means that though getting a visa for education abroad may not be affected, the system of permitting students who pass out, to pursue work as easily as before, may be a problem.

Work-permits or work-visas will be granted as most countries will expect to enable global employment opportunities, but with the impacted economy, people-of-the-land demands may affect policy makers.

Policy makers may need to revise jobs, employment schedules and opportunity windows, to ensure people of the land earn via jobs preferred by them. So, first preferential job options, may become a common expectation.

Again, Social Accountability will need to change to include Job systems that create jobs for people-of-the-land. The need to create jobs for the people-of-the-land may be more cause and effect based than what we see today (and also as what was in May 2020).

How could this affect foreign students?

It may change their time period or scope of paying back for their future education or other financial undertakings. Can this stress our younger generations?

What could be the newer planning needed by the HRD ministry and organizational models in India?

Sustainable & sensitized development is not a common practicable, so the need is to add Social Accountability for this problem area.

This means that as students pass out of their terminal semesters or graduate courses, the need will be to offer a Social Accountability Credit system that permits students who do not get jobs to enroll for project undertakings identified by the Governments and HRD experts as important for the country, where sponsors (organizations and businesses) could be either via industry stake-holding “for sustainable & sensitized development” or via Government identifiers for these projects. The new sensitized interest could be to help students work, to gain ability for NEXT steps.

This ability for NEXT steps could be earning Social Accountability stipends and Social Accountability credits, that permit them to either plan for the future or pay back for current financial undertakings without seeking to “work in alternate roles” or “to pursue foreign education to make a better living (at a higher financial risk)”.

A highlight could be that as graduates may not be bound to work as labor class employees, or as short term staff, it may be NEXT Steps sufficiency to prevent investments being made by the Government, the HRD authority and our Educational systems from seeming to be less influential for sustainable & sensitized development.

The need could be to add Social Accountability “stipends and credits” to graduate education, or post graduate education or research based education, where stipends help students earn and credits help them add leading indicators to their higher graduation.

The leading indicators could be risk-mitigator(s) as

(a) credits that are transferrable across Educational systems, or

(b) they could be credits that earn them enrollment for specific fields of specialization or

(c) they could even help in future employment in a foreign country-and or back in the home country (like say India).

Revisiting what SA8000 means (with concern for the current fiscal condition and need for more accountability)

It needs to be said that Gap analysis for Social Accountability could be a vision to be introspective and millennium based.

A. About Social Accountability

Intent: The intent of social accountability is to provide an auditable, voluntary standard, based on the UN Declaration of Human Rights, ILO and other international human rights and labor norms and national labor laws, to empower and protect all personnel within an organization's control and influence who provide products or services for that organization, including personnel employed by the organization itself and by its suppliers, sub-contractors, sub-suppliers and home workers.

Scope: It is universally applicable to every type of organization, regardless of e.g., its size, geographic location or industry sector.

The SA8000 is a voluntary standard for auditable third-party verification, setting out the requirements to be met by organizations, including the establishment or improvement of workers' rights, workplace conditions and an effective management system.

It is intended that an organization shall comply with this Standard through an appropriate and effective Management System. This self-assessment helps bring in awareness, sensitization, preparedness and accountability by putting across questions framed that need to be answered in the affirmative (Yes) in order for the organization to be socially accountable in its human resource management policies.

B. What does Social Accountability focus on?

2. Forced or Compulsory Labor
3. Health and Safety

10. Focus on Economic downturns and Graduate/Post Graduate/ Research Education

Please refer to the NEXT Steps sufficiency note (Page 2) on what could affect students in their terminal semesters or graduations.

The interest is to question what is more a possibility today, due to the downturn in the economy with valuable predictions by different economists for the periods to come and to stay ahead in this millennium..

L. What is NEXT?

The next step to ensure your responses are correct is to review the information in the SA8000 Consolidated Guidance document (included in the toolkit). To be socially accountable in your business model, your responses should have been relevant (a Yes or a No as needed) for all prerequisites of the SA 8000 standard.

About the toolkit

The different documents that are part of the toolkit help an interested organization understand the need for sustainable development, thereon prepare for and implement a policy for SMART Convergence, where the organization focuses on triple bottom line benefits rather than today's profitability and total cost of ownership.

The documents bundled in the Sustainable Policies folder are reckoners for what is needed in certain management systems for sustainable development and delivery. These reckoners can act as a baseline for further planning and inference.

If your organization is interested in sustainability, take the NEXT step by beginning your reading of the rest of the toolkit. The consultant has hosted proof of concept websites.
